The Gallery by MUI Showcases Female Artists Online Exhibit

In Conversation With...

Washington, DC— February 29, 2024 — From March 1 through March 31, 2024, The Gallery by MUI will be hosting their annual Women’s History Month online exhibit. This year’s exhibit titled, In Conversation With, features the work of over 15 artists, presenting 18 works, and representing 6 countries.

“We were given another opportunity to showcase female creators and artists during Women's History Month for the third year in a row. In Conversation With explores women's ability to exist in multiple spaces, the ways in which we communicate, and our adaptability, and showcases the work of female creators and artists only.” This exhibit, curated by Gallery Creative Director Maria Ilochi, shows artworks, photographs, and performance art, that both celebrate and represent women’s significant, multifaceted role in society. Asked about the online art exhibition, Ilochi said that the goal was to highlight and showcase the commonalities in our stories and experiences. “This exhibition was curated to carve out space for women to express themselves, and encourage and empower the women around them. I decided to keep the tradition going during Women’s History Month to amplify our shared stories and experiences as women.”

The exhibition encompasses many visual arts: painting, collage, photography, and performance. “We did not want to limit this open call in any way – from medium to location, which ensured a variety of media, subject, and artistic style.” Ilochi adds.

About The Gallery by MUI: The Gallery by MUI is a visual design studio and creative platform focused on amplifying creators through collaborative art efforts. Through our collaborative efforts including, but not limited to, online exhibitions, interviews, and written publications, we strive to create an environment where creators can showcase and explain their craft, in their own words.
